BDLive - Tech-heavy Naspers led losses on the JSE, while global markets were mostly weaker as China's crackdowns on technology companies sent a ripple through global markets.

Tencent, which influences the JSE via the Naspers stable, fell another 9% on the Hang Seng on Tuesday to HK$446, bringing losses for the past two days to about 16%, after the Chinese competition authorities ordered it to stop exclusive music licensing deals. The JSE was weaker on Tuesday, with its global peers mostly down as China's crackdowns sent shock waves across global markets.

The JSE all share was on track to end a five-day winning streak, pulled lower by tech-heavy Naspers and Prosus as the effect of the Chinese regulatory clampdown on the technology sector continued.

BDLive - Bengaluru — Gold traded in a tight range on Tuesday, pinned below the $1,800 psychological level, as investors focused on this week's Federal Reserve meeting for clues about when the central bank might rein in its easy monetary policies.

Spot gold was flat at $1,797.71 an ounce by 3.24am GMT. US gold futures fell 0.1% to $1,797.70 an ounce.

The dollar index held steady just below recent peaks. The greenback has been rising broadly for more than a month as markets are wary of the Fed starting to taper its monetary support.

"Investors are waiting for the Federal open market committee meeting for more clues on the direction of the US dollar and its ramifications to the gold prices," said Margaret Yang, a strategist at DailyFX.

FarmFutures - Corn: The bullish momentum from yesterday's Crop Progress report, which trimmed corn and soybean ratings across the Heartland, stalled in today's trading session, propelling corn futures to a mostly flat trading day as bargain buyers snapped up contracts. Uncertainty about export demand capped the day's gains.

U.S. corn exporters reported the three largest monthly volumes for international corn shipments between March and May 2021. So it should come as little surprise that ADM saw its second quarter profit rise an astonishing 52% on bullish corn exports and profitable oilseed crushing margins.

In its quarterly earnings call early this morning, the processing giant beat out earnings expectations on the sentiment, sending share prices up 1% to $59 at last glance. Quarterly revenues appreciated nearly 41% to $22.9 billion.

Corn sales to China contributed to the lion's share of the company's eye-popping second quarter. But the company remains leery of Chinese buying activity as the U.S. crop approaches maturation. China increased corn acreage this spring and markets have struggled to gauge potential impacts of a larger crop against rising global grains demand.

Tight global edible oil supplies were also a leading factor in the company's quarterly earnings appreciation. ADM profited off of strong crush margins as the food industry scrambles to source adequate volumes of soyoil in the post-pandemic era.

FarmFutures - Wheat: Chicago wheat prices traded $0.02-$0.03/bushel lower at last glance as a large Russian crop is expected to be harvested in the coming weeks. Variable hard red winter wheat yields pulled up Kansas City futures prices by $0.02-$0.03/bushel as harvest activity shifts into the drought-plagued Northern Plains. Spring wheat futures continue $0.01-$0.03/bushel higher on that sentiment as well.

Russian agricultural consultancy Sovecon expects Russian wheat exports to edge lower in the 2021/22 marketing year as a rainy harvest season and farmer hesitancy to sell the freshly harvested wheat crop slows export rates. Sovecon expects Russia will export 1.36 billion bushels of wheat in 2021/22, down nearly 4% from the consultant's previous estimates. Russia continues to update its ongoing wheat export tax on a weekly basis. The added cost has deterred some Russian growers from booking sales in hopes of more lucrative pricing options in the future. "Many farmers still prefer to postpone sales, hoping that the current export tax could be lifted in several months," Sovecon's Andrey Sizov said. "In our view, this looks like wishful thinking, but it does slow down exports."

Sovecon expects Russia will harvest 3.02 billion bushels of wheat in the coming weeks. Current USDA forecasts peg the crop at 3.12 billion bushels. Russia is the world's largest wheat exporter.

FarmFutures - Soybeans: Soybean prices also continued higher today after USDA cut 2% from good to excellent crop ratings in the latest Crop Progress report. Despite favorable weekly loading volumes reported from USDA yesterday, traders remain concerned about Chinese soybean buying paces as the country's soybean crush margins grow increasingly tight.

Livestock carcasses continue to litter the flood waters of Central China's Henan province. As the carcasses decompose, fresh batches of pathogens will be created that could potentially spread to other animals – and humans – in the region if disinfectant measures are not quickly taken.

Henan, which is China's third-largest hog producer, is estimated to have lost thousands of livestock, namely pigs and chickens, in the recent floods that ravaged Central China. The rains increase the likelihood of another round of African swine fever outbreaks as the virus easily spreads through contaminated wastewater.

Last winter's ASF outbreak in China is largely believed to have been tied back to flooding that previous summer. ASF destroyed over half of China's hog herd following the virus' onset in 2018. Hog farmers in the region are scrambling to source disinfectant materials following the recent floods to curb further spread of the virus.
