Europe, New Zealand and Australia - Weather

EUROPE : Condition in the first week of the outlook will improve in the Balkan Countries and some of Italy due to greater rain and cooler-trending temperatures. This will help to reduce crop and livestock stress. Conditions in northern Europe will continue to be nearly ideal. Shower and thunderstorm activity will occur in the region daily through Thursday. Total moisture will vary from 0.35 to 2.00 inches in around 45% to 60% of the region with some local amounts of more than 2.50 inches. Less rain is likely in the second week, July 26 – Aug. 2, compared to the first week.

AUSTRALIA : Conditions in the first week of the outlook will be favorable in most of the region. Some needed rain will occur in production areas of the south, especially in Western Australia. Winter crops continue to establish in some areas; though, most of the crop is gradually becoming semi-dormant with the recent cool temperatures. Occasional rain shower activity will occur in southern areas through Thursday. Total moisture will vary from: 0.35 to 1.50 inches from southwestern Western Australia through southern Victoria. 0.10 to 0.35 inch in New South Wales. Little to none in Queensland.
